

In Every Corner

Written by Ruth Merttens
Illustrated by Anne Holm Petersen

In every corner...

something lurks!

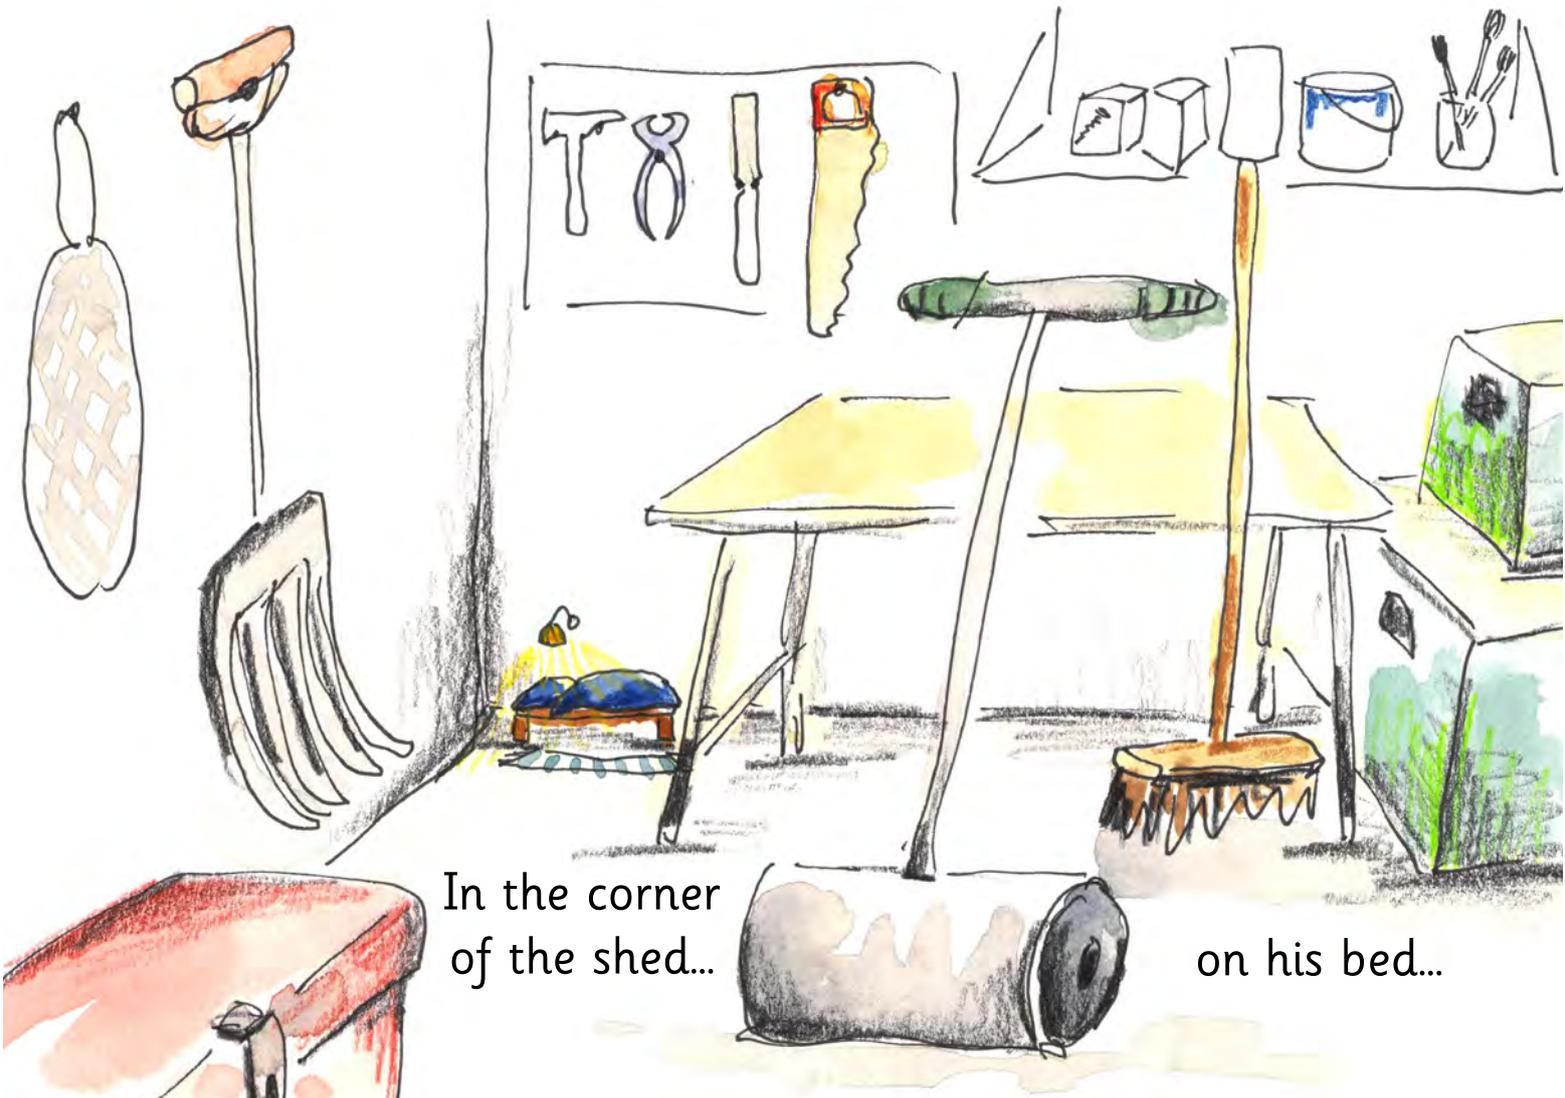

In the corner
of the room...

zoom...

a monster runs
to eat his buns!

In the corner
of the shed...

on his bed...

a monster lies

eating pies!

In the corner
of the garden...

I beg your pardon...

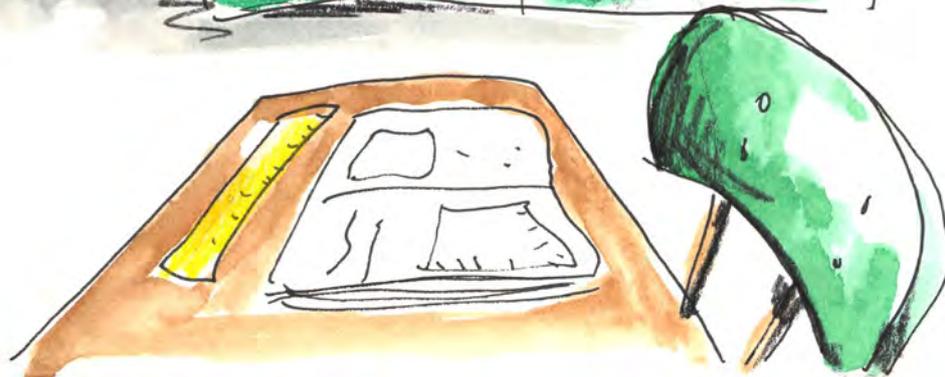

a monster sits
eating bits

of mud!

In the corner
of the class...

in a glass...

a monster stands
and claps his hands!

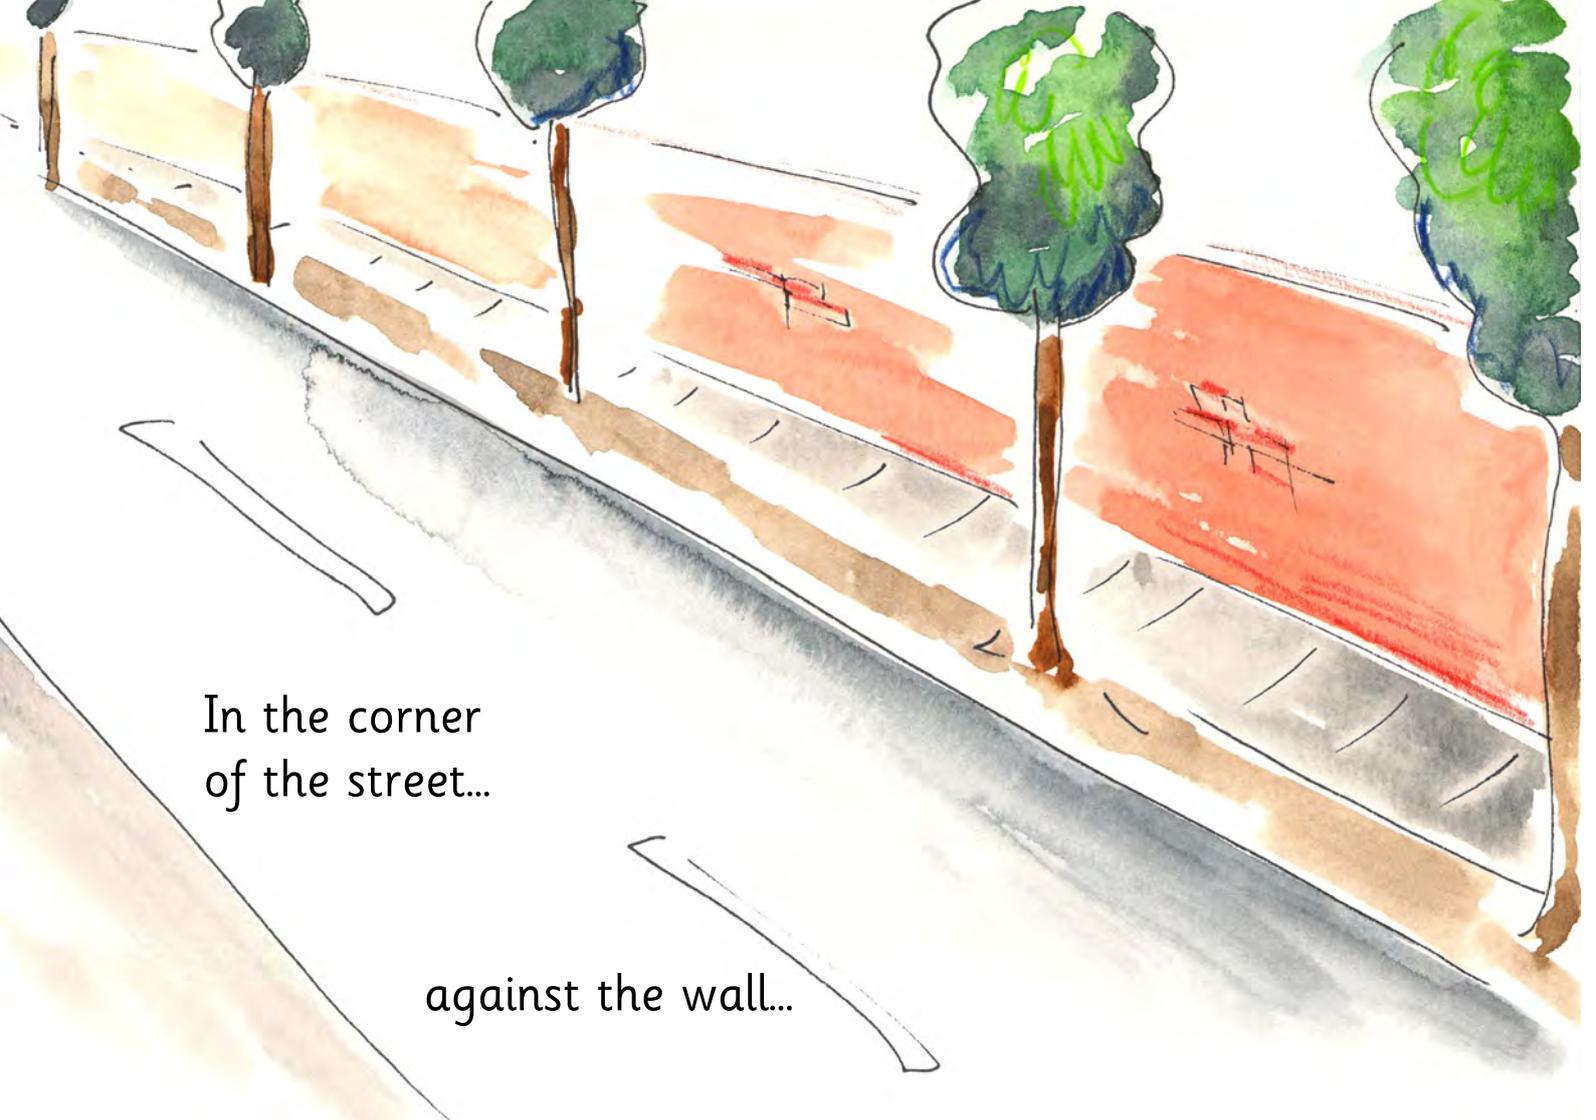

In the corner
of the yard...

oh, how hard...

a monster skips
then eats his chips!

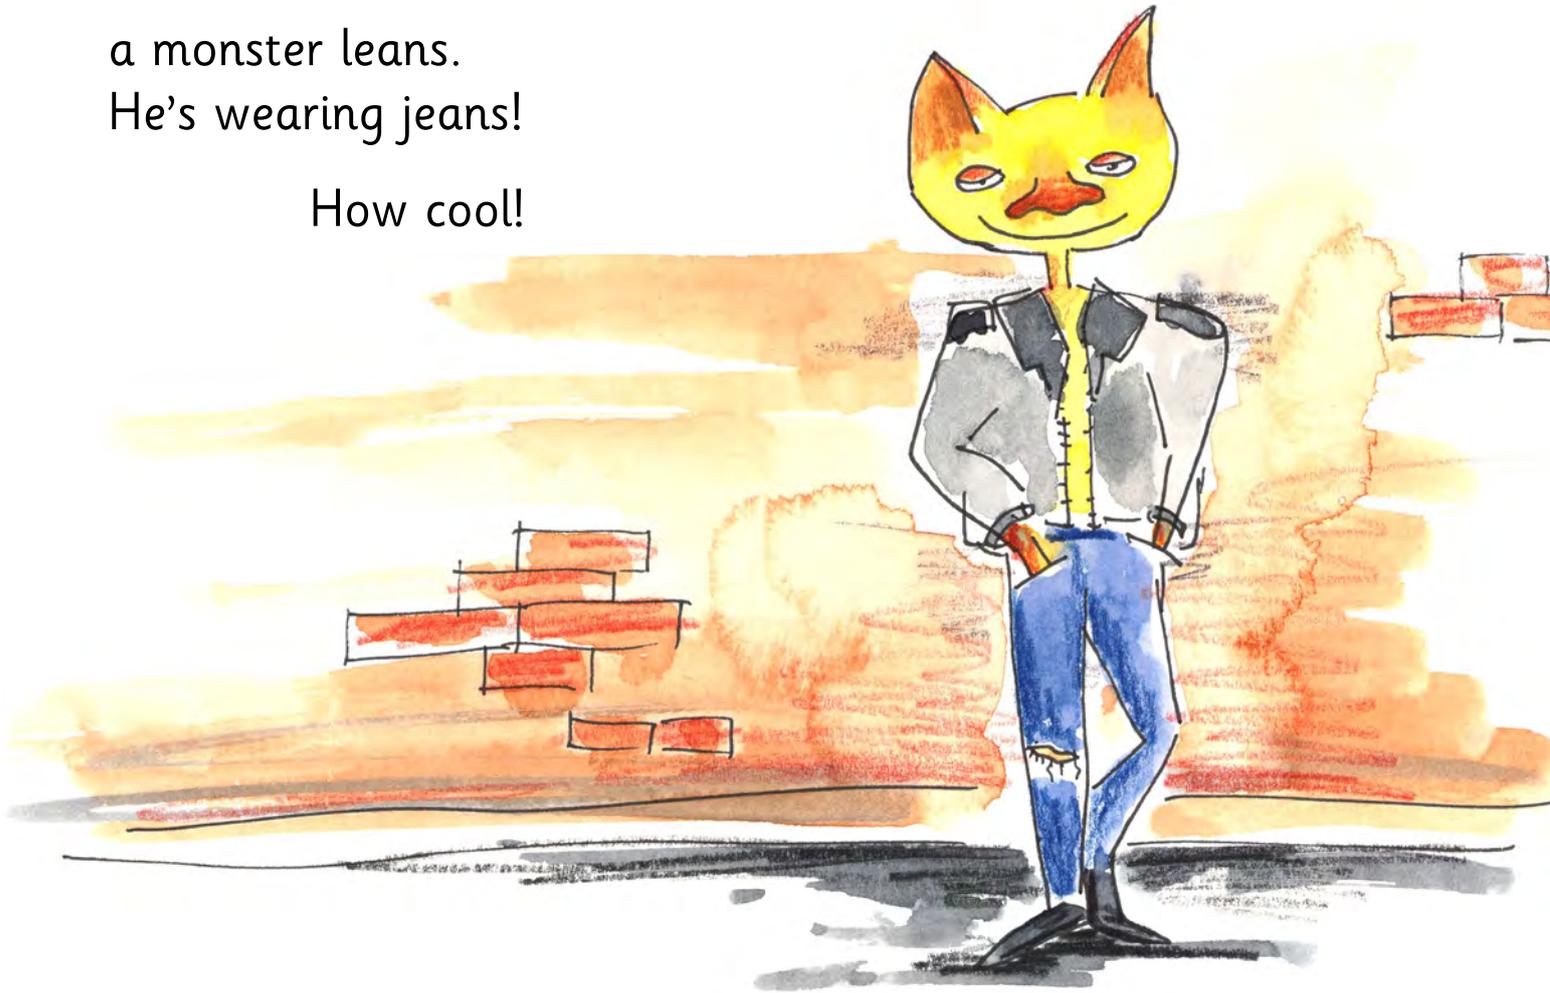

In the corner
of the street...

against the wall...

a monster leans.
He's wearing jeans!
How cool!

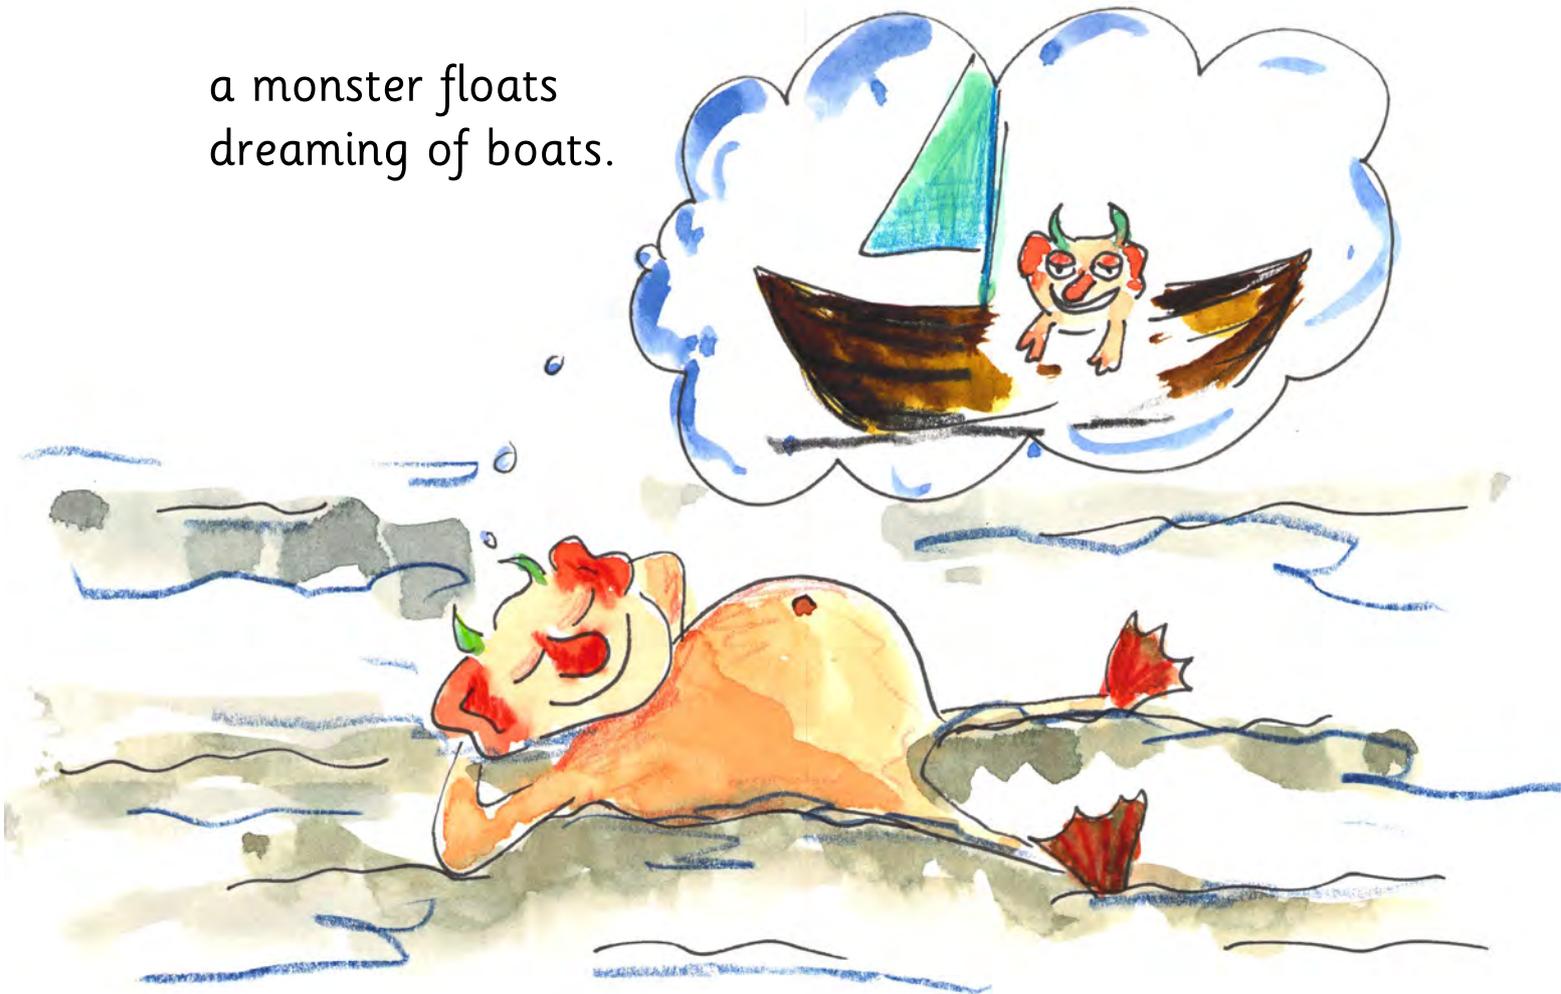

In the corner
of the pond...

amongst the fronds...

a monster floats
dreaming of boats.

In the corner
of the loo...

'can this be true?'

a monster hides,
clinging onto the sides!

In the corner
of the bath...

‘what a laugh!’...

two monsters swim
looking grim.

In the corner
of the bed...

(I hide my head...)

Two monsters wait.
They're coming straight...

For me!

Three little monsters sleeping tight,
warm and cosy through the night,
under covers, side by side.

When morning comes they start the day finding monster ways to play and corners in which to hide!
